1. Attached are program briefs, resulting from visits to the following RMO's: [REDACTED] 2. Needless to say, each office was still conscious of the records purge. It was interesting to note the impetus the purge has given to the revision of schedule consciousness, and the need for more concentration to records. Many of the officers advised that their offices were very much animated yet with respect to the purge and its lessons. Some were still involved in the purge itself. 3. If any generalization can be drawn from the visits, it is that many of the basic problems still persist. These will not be reiterated, but one that still stands out is the need for full-time records officers, and their development. Indications are that progress is being made in the DDP area, especially towards a cohesive effort, if nothing else.   _____ SIGNATURE
